INTRODUCTION.

The Genealogy of the Sargent Family, descendants of William, of Malden, Mass., was published in 1858. Prior to its publication every effort was made by direct search that ingenuity could suggest to learn whence came the progenitor of the family, but without avail. To learn the location of our ancestors in England, and to ascertain their social position, was much to be desired. Twenty-seven years later, however, it was discovered that our forefather came from Northampton, in England.

In the Note Book (published in 1885) of Thomas Lechford, lawyer, who was in Boston from 1637 to 1640, the following may be read: —

John Winthrop Esqr Governor of the Jurisdiccon of the Mattachusetts bay in New England to all manner of persons whome it may concern These are to certify you that William Sergeant late of Northampton haberdasher of Hatts and now of Charlestown in New England planter & Sarah his wife late the wife of William Minshall of Whitchurch in the County of Salop gent. Deceased are both blessed be God in full life and good health at the time of the making hereof. In testimony whereof I have caused the publicke seale of our Colony to be hereto affixed the fourteenth day of November in the fifteenth yeare of the raigne of our Soveraigne Lord Charles now King of England &c Annoq̄ Dñi 1639.

From the information thus imparted, all in this book that pertains to the English ancestry has been acquired, but not without much labor, perplexity, and cost. The historical statements made as facts may be relied upon, though for brevity's sake the authorities are not cited. These facts were obtained by research in English histories, reference books, parish registers, wills, and deeds.

No genealogical history has any value unless it can be proved by the records. The possession of a surname which coincides with that of an English family is no proof of relationship, for surnames similar in sound and even identical in spelling give no evidence of family connection. Claims of alliance are often based on a desire to boast a lineage, without the proofs which can be obtained, if at all, only by a laborious genealogical research. The assumption of the arms of English families having the same surname is equally futile and much to be deplored. Many in this country use coats-of-arms obtained from some student in heraldry or from books or plates, without the slightest claim to lineal descent from those to whom, of right, such armorial distinctions belonged.

The entire credit for all the valuable information given in this volume which pertains to the "Heraldic," to "The Name," to the "English Ancestry," and to the "Gifford Pedigree," belongs to Mr. John S. Sargent, of Chicago, Ill. (No. 636), whose untiring efforts and diligence have produced a record which would otherwise have forever remained in oblivion.

The "American Lineage" is the edition of 1858, published by the undersigned, with corrections and further information of the earlier generations, additional dates to later generations, and many accessions of names, with dates, etc., in the last four generations. All attempts to trace the line of descent have been confined to the name; but the knowledge of issue by marriage into other families having come, in quite a number of instances, to the compiler, without effort on his part, they have been preserved, and may be found alphabetically arranged under the head of "Alliances."

In some few instances it has been found possible to trace back in the maternal line to some of the first settlers in New England of other patronymics. These have been collated, and placed in alphabetical order under the head of "American Pedigrees."

Among the large number of descendants there are several whose line of descent, if any, it has been found impossible to follow, scattered as the family became all over the United States and also into Canada.

Many of the surname will perhaps search these pages without finding their own name recorded. If they can trace their ancestry back, and cannot make connection with one of those whose descent is untraced, they may safely conclude that they belong to another family of the same name.

Of the ten or eleven of the name who came to New England in the seventeenth century (1633 to 1684) there were four with the given or baptismal name of William: one in Ipswich in 1633, afterwards in Newbury and Amesbury; one in Malden in 1638, afterwards in Barnstable, and whose lineal descendants of the surname are recorded in this book; one in Gloucester in 1649, and another in the same place in 1678,—all within the bounds of the present State of Massachusetts. It is not known that these four were related to one another, or that the first two knew of each other or knew of the last two or of the other six or seven of the same surname.

The compilation of this volume has been at the request of several members of the family who are desirous that the records which have been collected with so much labor, may not only be in their possession, but that others of the family may obtain them, and that they may be preserved for future generations.

The sincere thanks of the compiler become due and are now given to the many persons — members of the family and otherwise — who have so kindly and so cheerfully responded to his inquiries for information.

HERALDIC.

There are three classes of coats-of-arms: first in importance, those inherited by direct descent through a long line of ancestry; second, such as have been granted for meritorious services by the Heralds' College; and, third, those bestowed by the College on receipt of a fee. These last are of no value, genealogically considered.

"Coates of Armes were inuented by our wise ancestors to these 3 ends — The first was to honour and adorne the family of him that had well deserued towards his countrye.

"The seconde to make him more worthy and famous aboue the rest, which had not done merite and thereby they might be provouked to doe the like.

"The third was to differ out the severall lignes and issues from the noble ancestor descending, so that the eldest borne might be known from the seconde and he from the thirde &c."

Probably armorial devices were first borne by kings and nobles, as personal decorations; but it was not until the reign of Henry III. (1216–72) that heraldry assumed anything like a definite system.

The coat armorial in use by the Sargents of Shropshire, Staffordshire, Kent, Gloucestershire, and Northamptonshire, was Argent, a chevron between three dolphins, embowed, naiant, sable.

In blazoning arms, it is an established rule with heralds that animals are always to be interpreted in the best sense; that is, according to their most noble and generous qualities, that the most honor may redound to their bearers.— Gen. Reg.

The Dolphin is said to be a Fish of such exceeding great Swiftness, as that oftentimes he outstrippeth a Ship under Sail, in her greatest ruff and merriest Wind, in Swiftness of Course.— Guillim's Display of Heraldry.

The earliest known use of this coat-of-arms was in 1324, by Adam le Serjant, of Bridgenorth, in Shropshire. It was used in Staffordshire in 1639, and is found in Northamptonshire in 1729, 1738, and 1747, on memorial tablets, as belonging to members of the Sargent family whose genealogy is traced in this volume.

THE NAME.

The first use of surnames is said to have been in France, especially in Normandy, in the latter part of the tenth century. They were probably introduced into England in the eleventh century, at the time of the Norman invasion.

The increase of population, the extension of commerce, and the general expansion of business necessitated more definite means for personal identification than could be conveyed by the use of a single name.

Surnames, as is well known, originated in various ways. The name might have been suggested by the color of the hair or of the complexion, or the form of some feature or part of the body, by a vocation, profession, or official title, by some individual trait of character or physical condition, or by other circumstance or attribute of the recipient.

By common consent the name taken or applied became the sobriquet of the person for life and of his descendants after him.

The surname of Sargent in the various ways in which it is spelled is said to have come from the Latin phrase servientes armorum,— men discharging a military service, and hence soldiers (Serjens d'Armes); but "Serjiant of the Law" (Serviens ad Legem) was a term in very early use, and it is to the word as used in this capacity, probably, that we owe our much varied name of Sargent. The English translation of Serviens into Sergent did not appear until the reign of Henry III. or Edward I. The earliest records of the change of name are noted in the "Maegu Rotul Scaccarii Normannie," in Palgrave's "Rotuli Curiæ Regis," and in the "Rotulus Cancellaru."

Malger and Gislebert Serviens were in Normandy in 1180–95, and Gislebert, Horsel, and Roger Serviens in 1198. Robert Serviens was in England in 1198, and Henry, Herbert, Simon, and Walter Serviens in 1202.

Walter le Seriant was in Yorkshire and William le Serjant was in Hertfordshire in 1272. William le Serjaunt, Theobold le Seriant, and Peter le Seriant were in Buckinghamshire, Walter le Serjaunt or Sergaunt was in Northamptonshire, and Henry le Serjant was in Lincolnshire in 1275. Roger le Serjant was in Lincolnshire in 1276, and Roger le Serjaunt was in Oxfordshire, William le Serjaunt was in Staffordshire and Thomas Serjaunt was in Northamptonshire in 1277. To these cases, taken at random, many others might be added; but the few cited will suffice to show how widely spread, even at this early period, was the name, and how it is found in counties where it flourished long afterwards.

In the next century it is found that Adam le Serjant was one of the burgesses in Bridgenorth, in Shropshire, in 1324.

Two centuries later it appears that Dominus Thomas Sergeaunt was of Huxlow Hundred, north-east from Northampton and near Huntingdonshire, in 1503. Dominus Thomas Sergeaunt was of St. Giles Church, Spelho Hundred, north from Northampton, in 1512. William Serjaunt was of Huxlow Hundred in 1545. Thomas le Serjaunt, of Wimersley Hundred, De la Pre, a few miles south-east from Northampton, gave land and rents in Hardingstone and Cotes to the Abbey of St. Mary de Pratis (date not given). De la Pre Abbey, one and one-half miles from Northampton, was founded in the reign of Stephen by Simon de St. Liz, and was called St. Mary de la Pre.

The earlier records of Northampton are incomplete.

The town was partially destroyed by fire in 1675, and it may be that many records were destroyed. The parish registers of St. Giles' Church commence in 1559, All Saints' in 1560, St. Sepulchre (supposed to have been built in the twelfth century by the Knights Templars after a model of the Church of the Holy Sepulchre at Jerusalem) in 1571, and St. Peter's in 1596.

As a matter of curiosity and as an answer to the question sometimes asked, "What is the correct way of spelling the name?" the varied orthography as found in the earlier records and papers is here given. It seems to have varied, not only with time and with successive generations, but also with the same person.

SERVIENS	SERGEAUNT	SARGIANT
SERJANT	SERGAUNT	SARGIAUNT
SERJENT	SERGANT	SEARJEANT
SERJEANT	SERGENT	SARGANTT
SERJIANT	SERIANT	SARGANTE
SERJAUNT	SARIANT	SARGENTE
SEJEANT	SARJANT	SARGEAUNT
SEARGEANT	SARJENT	SARGAINT
SERGENTT	SARJEANT	SARGANT
SERGANTE	SARGYANT	SARGEANT
SERGEANT		SARGENT

It will thus be seen that there is no one mode of spelling the name that is correct over and above all other modes. Custom, however, in the Malden family has brought the form to the last two methods noted above; and for the sake of uniformity the last of the two, as being the most common, is used in the following pages, though many branches of the family still retain the vowel a in the second syllable.

The earliest method of spelling the name by any member of this family, so far as has been ascertained, was Sariant.

THE CHURCH AT COURTEENHALL.

ENGLISH ANCESTRY.

Hugh Sargent (Sariant), the earliest known ancestor of the family, lived in Courteenhall, County of Northampton. Courteenhall was the inheritance of the Wake family, which traces its descent back to Hereward the Wake, to a time anterior to the Norman Conquest. It is five and a quarter miles southerly from the town of Northampton, and in 1831 contained one hundred and forty-four inhabitants. The church is dedicated to Saint Peter and Saint Paul.

Prefixed to the first volume of the parish register, which begins in the year 1538, and folded to its size, is a large piece of parchment, on which is very neatly transcribed many pedigrees. One of them is of the family of Sargent. There can be no doubt that this piece of work, which is both most useful and rare, was written by a former rector, who had at first hand the facts which he recorded.

The rector of the church, Rev. Archibald Wake (1895), says, "The parchment shows that the family were in Courteenhall in 1554, and were of gentle blood; and possibly the Sargents were in the parish before a Wake entered it."

Margaret, wife of Hugh Sargent, was daughter of Nicholas and Agnes (Masters) Gifford, of the Abbey of St. James, which was a western suburb of the town of Northampton. (See "Gifford Pedigree.") This abbey was a religious estate of considerable note, founded before the year 1112, by William Peverel, natural son of William the Conqueror, and to which he (Peverel) gave forty acres of land. It is called St. James End.

Hugh Sargent must have been born about the year 1530. He died Feb. 23, 159⅝, (buried 1st of March).

That he heeded the Scripture injunction, "Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth," is evidenced by the fact that he was the father of fifteen children, the eldest having been born in 1556, and the youngest in 1579.

His children, in their order of birth, were:—

I. Elizabeth, bap. Jan. 30, 155⅝; m. Sept. 16, 1576, Nicholas Edwards.

II. Anne, ——.

III. Nicholas, bap. Aug. 1, 1559; m. Nov. 27, 1593, Elizabeth, widow of John Clarke.

IV. Roger, b. about 1562; m. Jan. 3, 15⅝⅝, Ellen Makernes (d. October, 1645, buried the 21st). He died July, 1649 (buried the 16th).

Ellen, wife of Roger Sargent, was daughter of William Makernes, of Finedon, thirteen and a half miles northeasterly from Northampton. The will of William Makernes, dated March 10, 1612, proved March 30, 1616, names sons, Richard, Edmund, George, and William, "son-in-law Roger Seargeant," and daughter, Margery Chapman.

Roger Sargent (probably named for his mother's brother, Roger Gifford, or his great-grandfather of the same name) was junior bailiff in 1616 and 1617, and mayor of Northampton in 1626. The following is a copy of his will:—

In the name of God Amen I Roger Sariant of the Towne of Northton Mercer beinge aged and weake in bodye but of good and disposinge memory and undrstandinge (for wch I bless God) doe make this my last Will in manner followinge. He married Maude, the daughter of the Saxon leader Waltheof (created Earl of Northampton), and Judith, a niece of William the Conqueror. The old Gothic embattled tower, of the decorated style, is the only part of the old church which escaped the disastrous fire of 1675. When rebuilt, it was opened Sept. 5, 1680, by the Bishop of Peterborough, Dr. William Lloyd.

GIFFORD PEDIGREE.

The family of Gifford is of high authority. They were seated at Honfleur, in Normandy, in the eighth century,—three centuries before the conquest of England by Duke William. At the battle of Hastings (1066) "Sire Rundolph de Gifford," was one of the Conqueror's standard-bearers. Walter Gifford, Earl of Buckingham, was a cousin of the Conqueror. In the reign of Henry II. (1154–89) Sir Peter Gifford married Alice, daughter of Sir Grey de Corbuchin. In the reign of Richard I. (1189–99) Sir Stephen Gifford was one of the barons accompanying the king (Richard Cœur de Lion) to the Holy Land, and was killed at the siege of Jerusalem; and his son, Sir Stephen, was wounded there. Baron George Gifford was made Earl of Buckingham, and subsequently Duke of Buckingham. He married the Princess Maude Plantagenet, the king's cousin. George Gifford, Duke of Buckingham, son of the first George, Duke of Buckingham, was a favorite of Richard III., but being detected by him in the act of corresponding with the Earl of Richmond, afterwards Henry VII., he was attainted of high treason and beheaded by Richard's order, and his children deprived of their lands and titles, which Henry VII. found it convenient not to restore. George Gifford, son of George, Duke of Buckingham, continued the first line, and constantly solicited the crown and Parliament to restore him to his land and titles, but was always defeated. The family continued to press their claim before Parliament, but were never able to obtain a judgment.

Arms: gules, three lions, passant, in pale, argent.

John Gifford was in Twyford, in Buckinghamshire, in the fifteenth century. Roger Gifford, grandson of John, leased the manor of Middle Claydon in 1535; and his heirs leased it to Martin Lister, who surrendered it to Sir Edward Verney.

The line of descent from John Gifford to Margaret, who married Hugh Sargent, appears in the "Heralds' Visitation of Northamptonshire" in 1618–19. In the "Visitation" of 1681–82 the family is stated to be lineally descended from the ancient family of the name; and the same arms are given as being the arms of Francis Gifford, son of Roger, who was brother of Margaret.

American Note.— John Gifford (Giffarde), of Lynn, Mass., 1653, agent for a company in London for iron-works at Lynn, used a seal bearing "three lions in pale." This seal must have been brought from England, and so be genuine, as at that time the skill required in cutting seals was not possessed on this side of the ocean.

AMERICAN LINEAGE.

William Sargent, the ancestor of the family in America, came from Northampton, in England, to Charlestown, in New England, with his third wife, Sarah, and two daughters by his first wife, in the year 1638.

The plantation at Salem had been begun in 1628 by John Endicott and others, who came over from England to make preparations for the settlement of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. Several persons, by his permission, travelled in a westerly direction about twelve miles through the woods, and came to a neck of land between the Charles and Mystic Rivers, called by the natives Mishawum, which was "full of Indians of the Aberginian tribe." Having obtained consent of the sagamore, they settled there, and agreed to call the new settlement "Charlestown." As early as 1629 Ralph Sprague and others, living in Charlestown, crossed the river to explore the country, and found an "uncouth wilderness," inhabited by the Pawtucket Indians. A settlement was afterwards made at "Mystic Side" — that is, on the north side of Mystic River — as a part of Charlestown; and William Sargent and his family made their domicile there. He was admitted to the church in Charlestown, March 10, $163\frac{8}{9}$; and his wife was admitted the following Sunday. He was made a freeman of Massachusetts Bay Colony the same year.

The Middlesex County Registry of Deeds contains a record of an agreement, duly attested, between commissioners of Charlestown and of Mystic Side, for dividing the unappropriated common lands, in which occurs the following clause: "In consideration, the brethren on Mystic side are, by the providence of God, shortly to go into a church estate by themselves, and for the more comfortable proceeding and carrying on of that work of Christ among them."

This instrument (recorded Jan. 4, 169½) purports to have been drawn by authority of a certain writing bearing date March 26, 1649. From this it appears that the church at that time was not organized, but undoubtedly was a few weeks later.

In 1649 a new town was set off from Charlestown, on Mystic Side, as a separate town, and named Malden, probably from Malden, in Essex County, England, the early home of Joseph Hills, a resident and a prominent man of the time.

The Rev. Marmaduke Mathews was called in 1650 to be the first pastor in the new town; and previous to his settlement William Sargent was a lay preacher there (from 1648 to 1650). He is mentioned by Johnson in his "Wonder-working Providence," as follows: "The people gathered into a church some distance of time before they could attain to any church officer to administer the Seals unto them, yet in the meantime at their Sabbath assemblies they had a godley Christian named M. Sarjant who did preach the Word to them till 1650."

The Middlesex Registry contains also the following record: —

Know all men by these presents, that the inhabitants of the town of Malden have given and granted to the use of the present preaching elder and his next successor, and so from time to time to his successors, foure acres of ground purchased from James Green for that end, and the house built thereupon at the charge of all the inhabitants, by a town vote proportionably made the 22^{d} of the 10th month 1651. these underwritten in the name of the inhabitants, 6th month '55, also a vote in '52.

William's farm was in the southerly part of Mystic Side, or Malden, on the southerly slope of a hill (afterwards called Belmont Hill), about one and a third miles north-east from the river. The farm was owned by him as early as 1640, with the exception of eight acres southwest of and adjoining the original farm, which he purchased in 1654. It was on both sides of what was afterwards the Newburyport Turnpike, which, having been abandoned as a turnpike, became a town highway, called Broadway. This part of the town was set off from Malden in 1870, and named Everett in honor of Edward Everett, the distinguished statesman and orator.

The town was incorporated as a city in 1893.

The picture presented is of the house built by William Sargent, and bequeathed by him in his will to his son John. If it is not an exact representation, it has the merit of being as near, and probably nearer, to the original, than some of the modern statues and portraits of distinguished men of former times.

The right-hand or east part of the picture, including the door and chimney, was standing until about the year 1890; and the picture is from a photographic copy. The architecture of the left-hand or west part is a matter of conjecture. But there certainly was a west part (and it would as certainly have conformed to the east part); for in the Middlesex Registry of Deeds there is a record of an indenture dated March 1, 1713, between John Sargent and his sons Jonathan and Ebenezer, in which it is stated that the father "ffor and in consideraton of the naturall and ffatherly good will and affection which he hath and bequath unto his sons, y^e^ said Jonathan and Ebenezar, part of his Dwelling house," "That is to say, The Lower Room in the west end of his Dwelling house with all the Garritt in the west end, with the Barn and all the out houseing and all the Land adjoining thereunto That was his ffather William Sargeants." In his will he gives his wife "the use and benefit of y^e^ East End of my dwelling house from bottom to top," and to his unmarried daughters "my west chamber," "and a free passage to it." He bequeaths to his sons Jonathan and Ebenezer all his lands not otherwise disposed of, and recites that he has already given them by deed of gift "an Estate in houseing and land."

In 1720 the brothers divided the property, Ebenezer's moiety including the east end of the house; and in a deed of conveyance in 1736 he describes it as land "received from my father by deed of gift, being the homestead," one of the boundary lines being "as the squeing wall runs."

William Sargent removed to Barnstable probably in 1656 or 1657; for he was in Malden in August, 1655, and in Barnstable the "29^th^ of the 4^th^ month 1658," as appears by a power of attorney given by him to Joseph Hills; and he was made a freeman of Plymouth Colony in 1657. He was a preacher in Barnstable, and is said to have succeeded the Rev. John Lothrop; but he could not have been the next in succession, for Lothrop died Nov. 8, 1653. He seems to have been a prominent man in Barnstable, as he had previously been in Malden.

His name appears in the Middlesex County Court files for the year 1661, as plaintiff in a suit for the recovery of rent of his farm in Malden. A lengthy document in the case called "Articles of Agreement had made and concluded on the first day of the fifth month 1658 Betwixt William Sergeant of Barnstable in the Jurisdiccon of New

Plymouth on the one partie; And James Lane of Maldon in the Massachusets on the other partie," sets forth, under eleven "Items," the conditions of a contract. There are the usual papers of "power of attorney," "deposition," "costs," etc. Job Lane (brother of James) seems to have got into the case as principal; for the finding of the court was "In the case depending betweene Mr. William Sargant plantife & Job Lane defendant now finds for the plantife & that sed defendant pay according to covenant for plffe sed sum of six pounds seven pense with the cost of corte, that is to say the ballance of the accoumpt	05.14.7

and for damages	00.06.0

Among the papers is a letter from William Sargent to Joseph Hills, of which the following is a copy, and from which the fac-simile of the signature was obtained. It is legibly and handsomely written, and is about the only paper in the case that can be read without difficulty.

John Sargent (born in Charlestown) went to Barnstable with his father, and was admitted to inhabit there between 1662 and 1666. He returned to Malden about 1669, where he was a selectman six years.

In May, 1695, the town of Malden made a division of two thousand three hundred acres of common lands. The distribution was by lot to all freeholders in the town, in proportion to their ratable estates,—an average of about thirty acres to each man. Among the names are John Sargent, Sr., and John Sargent, Jr. It was voted by the town — showing confidence in his integrity and fairness — "that John Sargent, sen'r, is the man to draw the lots."

His slate gravestone is in Bell Rock Cemetery (formerly the "Old Malden Burial-ground").

Like his transatlantic great-grandfather, he heeded the Scripture injunction; and all his fifteen children are named in his will of May 20, 1708.

It is a circumstance worthy of incidental mention, perhaps, that the first and third wives of John Sargent (who was born in Massachusetts Bay Colony) were born in Plymouth Colony; so that the mingled blood of the Pilgrim and the Puritan of these two noted colonies (which afterwards became the Commonwealth of Massachusetts) flows in the veins of all his descendants.

Nathan Sargent (born in Malden) says in his diary, "I came to dwell in Leicester, Feb. 28, 1741." "Dec. 16, 1745 I came to dwell at Chestnut Hill" (Leicester).

His son Samuel in 1775 was a member of Captain Seth Washburn's company of minute-men. On the 19th of April the alarm reached Leicester of the advance of the British troops toward Concord. The company on their march to oppose them halted at Nathan Sargent's house. His wife, finding the members deficient in ammunition, hastily took the leaden weights from the clock, melted them into bullets, and distributed them among the men. (From General Samuel Andrews's chart of the descendants of Nathan Sargent.)

Homer Earle Sargent (born in Leicester, Mass.), educated chiefly at the then famous Leicester Academy, has been one of the prominent railway men of this country, commencing in 1844 with the Western Railroad of Massachusetts, and called the following year to the Boston & Worcester, now Boston & Albany Railroad, as way-station agent, then agent at Worcester, and later as general freight agent at Boston.

From this last position he was in 1858 called to the Michigan Central Railroad as its general agent and representative at Chicago, then to its general managership, where he continued until his resignation in 1874, a period of sixteen years. In 1876–77 he was urged to, and finally did, accept the general managership of the Northern Pacific Railroad, with which company he continued four years, and, in addition to managing duties, completed the road from the Missouri to the Yellowstone. Foreseeing the complications that followed change of ownership, he retired while the financial condition of the company was sound and unassailable.

In recognition of his services in the promotion of industrial emigration to that State, North Dakota, through its legislature, gave his name to one of its finest central counties.

Mr. Sargent formulated the first through railway freight tariff from Boston to the Lake Cities and St. Louis; was originator and for many years one of the directors of the Union Stock Yards at Chicago; also one of the incorporators and a director of the Pullman Palace Car Company.

Together with active railway duties prior to and covering a period of thirty-six years' residence in Chicago, and holding various positions of honor and trust, are added characteristic charities, for all of which he will be remembered kindly, especially in the city of his adoption, whose growth he has witnessed from a population of seventy-five thousand to nearly or quite two millions.

John S. Sargent (born in Leicester, Mass.) attended the Leicester Academy, and went to Chicago, Ill., in the fall of 1861. He was connected with the Michigan Central Railroad, remaining with the road until 1875, when he engaged in private business in the city of his adoption, enjoying the confidence of all with whom he had business relations, and in social life held in esteem by a large circle of acquaintances. Of good Revolutionary stock, he became an active member of the Illinois Sons of the American Revolution, holding official position therein. He was appointed paymaster of the Chicago Continental Guard, and was one of the charter members of the Illinois Society of Colonial Wars, and also became a member of the Massachusetts Society, and the Illinois Society, Sons of Massachusetts.

His descent from the English Puritan and Pilgrim early led him to seek his connection with an ancestry across the ocean, with admirable success, as told in the opening pages of this book.
